Back Home Week July 1 to 5

Scenes such as this one showing the bad fire a few years ago, will be recalled and discussed in July as former residents come back home for the Golden Jubilee celebration, July 1 to 5 inclusive.

The decision to proceed with the celebration came out of last week's Board of Trade meeting and witnessed high community spirit. Some committees have already been formed and projects underway.

The Journal will help commemorate this event by publishing a special Souvenir Issue tracing the history of Coleman.

This is your show -- work for it

Annual Rodeo and Parade To Be Held Saturday July 4th

Rodeo-Fireworks- Old Friends-Carnival and Variety Shows. That is what's in store for Coleman the week of July 1 to 5 as the result of last Thursday's Board of Trade meeting.

After considerable consideration and more enthusiasm than has been shown for months, the Board of Trade went on record as celebrating Coleman's Back Home Week from Wed., July 1 through to Sunday, July 5. Countless crowd pleasing ideas are already taking shape with many more to be considered. Although the gala event is still in the formative stage all indications are that it will be a top notch affair.

Heads Variety Show Comm.

Percy Dickleson

Most significant in the hours of discussion was the feeling of community spirit, volunteers eager to assume responsibility and strong in their view that it is a local show that can be produced by and with local talent.

At the very start of the discussion Harry Boulton came through with a plan to invite the former residents to return to Coleman for the event. This plan called for a contest among school students for a pleasing slogan and the mailing of cards to all former residents. Mr. P. Dickleson enlarged upon this by suggesting that staffers be printed that local people might enclose in their letters. Postmaster Graham mentioned the matter of getting a letter cancelling die for the post office with a message about the anniversary.

Board Treasurer C. Freeman touched off the most discussed point when he asked advisability of hiring an expensive road show when local talent might well be used to entertain us. It was felt that a locally produced show has appeal, former shows having proved this. Most in attendance were against hiring a road show, feeling that it had been tried before and always lost money. One member attributing this to the lack of advertising. To this reply stated that the population does not warrant the guarantee the promoters require and that even with better advertising it is more than likely the show would only break even. It was felt that the talent is in the Pass to form a variety show and make it pay. Some considerable discussion was heard regarding the problem of having some one gather this material and form the show. These objections were quickly squashed when P. Dickleson volunteered to head a committee for this purpose and was joined by J. Allan Jr. as assistant. Enthusiasm increased at this point, suggestions arising all around the table claiming such events as a trip up the Kananaskis, square dancing, and a trip to Tent Mountain if co-operation of the companies could be given. Fireworks and church services, baseball games and souvenir booklets, carnivals and auction sales followed in turn.

The annual parade came under discussion with a hope that an extra effort will be made on the event this year. The feeling was that the rodeo parade could be augmented by floats showing in pagant the growth of Coleman. The carnival brought out the point that wheels could be rented and the show run by local men, seeing that local men man the booths even though a carnival company is hired. Suggestions claimed that produce could be solicited from manufacturers to be given as prizes or auctioned off. All these points will be discussed at further meetings and in committee.

At present tentative planning calls for the annual southern Alberta horse laying competition scheduled for the first day with the Variety Show and possible fireworks that night. July 2nd will see a repeat of the Variety show and July 3 and 4 the Carnival at night. The parade and rodeo will provide entertainment on the 4th, church services held on the 5th.

Willow Drive To Continue Efforts on River Problem

The annual Willow Drive ratepayers meeting was held at the home of Adam Hammer on March 1. E. Churla and P. Meronuk of East Coleman attended and introduced hospital board candidates for the west end of the Improvement District.

Willow Drive accepted the candidates and agreed to support them at the polls. Mr. S. Mraz thanked the members on behalf of himself and Mrs. Molly Goliebowski.

Correspondence was read on the river project, and the committee instructed to continue with their efforts to have something done about this matter.

Correspondence was read regarding fire equipment for the Improvement District. A volunteer auxiliary fire team composing 8 or 10 members, was recruited.

Local Board Join The Associated Chamber of Com.

Coleman Board of Trade decided Thursday night to affiliate with the Alberta Associated Boards of Trade and Agriculture in order that the local association would have a medium of expressing their desires and gaining added support to their requests. The association meets in Lethbridge on March 25 and the Coleman March meeting has been moved ahead to the 18th to afford the local board the opportunity of making proposals and selecting delegates. It is hoped that D. Morlett will attend and outline the associations aims to the Coleman group.

The gathering felt that such projects as scenic roads, park sites and proper signs for the Kananaskis highway could be brought before such a convention. From this discussion it was learned that the Lundbreck Falls and Crows nest Lake areas have already been set aside as parklands.

President J. R. Hill informed the gathering that J. Colwell had attended the Macleod Chamber annual meeting, carrying the good wishes of Coleman Board.

The neon sign came in for considerable discussion again, the board maintaining the point of holding up payments until the sign is in proper working condition as per contract. Treasurer Freeman reported on the canvass of local business places conducted by himself and J. D'Apollonia. This canvass was to have pledges signed promising help in paying the yearly rental over a three year period. The report showed the business people responding favorably. President Hill spoke of the fine job done by these two men and removed that a vote of thanks be tendered a vote.

W. Holyk reported on the meeting of the Merchants' Association regarding closing of stores on Rodeo Day. ...V...

CANMORE LEADS

Canmore took a one game lead over C.P.R. Beavers Tuesday night. Coleman Grands meets the winner.

Juveniles Advance In Prov. Playdowns

Coleman Juveniles moved one step further along playoff trails Saturday night when they handed Canmore a 5-2 defeat in the second game. Coleman won the first contest at Canmore by a one goal margin.

Canmore opened the game with a couple of nice rushes in the early minutes but were unable to beat Kryczka in the Coleman net. Determination kept the locals in the game during the first twenty minutes, the boys not skating and playing their usual game. During spurts they showed well but lacked the usual polish in clearing and back checking. As the game progressed the Coleman crew picked up and showed their power, pressing the visiting crew back and breaking up rushes and superb back checking.

Tymchyna opened scoring at 3:40 of the first with a hard blue line drive. Belter bagging his first of three at 8:30 to give Coleman a three goal lead in the series. Wickson registered 2 in the first for Canmore, one at 10:40, the other at 12. Tomlins and Young teamed up at 15:35 to have Tomlins sink the counter and end the period at 3-2.

Belter capitalised on breaks during the second to score at 8:03 and again at 17:40. His first marker in this period came with Coleman having two men in the penalty box. Eddy picked up a stray pass, skated from centre unmolested and drew out the Canmore custodian in one of the neatest plays here this winter. Tymchyna drew an assist on Belter's second goal.

Coleman drew eight penalties during the game, Canmore 5.

THRILLS of the ROARIN' GAME

The "Perfect" Game Might Happen in 10,000 Years

There have been arguments raging for years on this subject but a sports writer has "figured" the possibilities. To slide-rule expert Ralph (Toronto Telegram) Allan we are still far from the "perfect game".

Allan took time out to figure the odds against a four-man rink throwing a perfect game. He wrote his pencil down to a stub but claims that it's 1,000,000 to 1 against a rink being perfect with the 96 rocks it has to throw in a 12-end game.

Ralph concedes that a top curler is apt to make four perfect shots out of five.

"Curling 100 games a season . . . Even a rink as good as the Watsons would be slightly more than 10,000 years old before it turned in a rink less performance. No rink can be curling perfectly when it either gives away more than one point on any end or permits the other side to score without the help of the last rock."

Don't stand around watching other games, concentrate on your own, and your curling will improve.

How would you explain the meaning of "Bonspiel"? Webster's dictionary gives the definition as "A match or tournament between curling clubs." An older meaning is given as "A formal match of good, and 'spiel' is German for play.

Curriers and curling clubs who desire to obtain long life and the best out of a good broom, should hang or stand the broom up on the handle in the basement, or a cool place with good humidity, and not in the ice section, or building where the broom will be constantly subject to frost.

Plant Scientists Working To Develop Rust-Resistant Grain

WINNIPEG.—A few potted plants at the University of Manitoba some day may be worth millions of dollars to North American grain growers and may sidestep a serious threat to the Prairie economy. Plant scientists, in three separate laboratories, are working to develop new grains capable of resisting rust, a malignant fungus menacing. Rust is borne in spore form by strong air currents from breeding grounds in Mexico and Texas.

The scientists' work is a never-ending race against time with the prosperity of the West the prize. Rust each year bites into wheat and barley, major dollar-earners for Canadian world markets. Like some diseases and insects, it has the ability to gain strength and break down previously resistant grains. The latest scourge is Race 15B which first appeared in the early 1940s. No licensed grain is able to withstand it.

Plant scientists here believe they have found a double answer to 15B—a new wheat variety known as "CT 186" and a new malting barley called "UM 1020".

The wheat, produced by the federal laboratory of cereal breeding, is not expected to be licensed until next year. The barley, expected to be licensed soon, was developed by the university's plant science department. Both research centres work closely with the federal laboratory of plant pathology on the campus.

Great patience and time are required to produce a new grain. Countless crossings and 12 years went into "UM 1020". Many months must pass before a seed can be produced.

The rust battle starts when breeders select various traits necessary in a new grain. Scientists know where they can get these desired factors, sometimes in a hardy grass, and the problem becomes one of crossing plants and waiting for results.

Some grains are planted in experimental plots at any of the 18 testing stations in Western Canada. In winter they're grown in greenhouse pots. If seed is available, it is sent to California or Arizona for an extra winter crop.

The time spent waiting for generations to grow is the most serious drawback in experiments. Then there are the many different qualities which must go into a grain.

A new wheat, besides being able to fight off rust, must have a multitude of qualities to be of use in highly competitive grain markets. It must possess good roots, high yields, sturdy stalks, frost resistance and high milling and baking qualities.

Wheat also must be able to resist the awfully, an insect which lays its eggs in wheat stems. The larvae gnaw through the stem and then cut off the top by boring a ring.

A good barley needs similar qualities but partly in reverse. Wheat must be high in protein, something undesirable in malting barley. Both grains are ready prey for loose smut which turns kernels into fine brown powder.

"CT 186" was developed from what was known as "RL 2255". This variety was the result of a cross between a strange new wheat discovered in a southwestern Manitoba field, Named McMurchy after its finder, it was bred with Exchange, highly resistant to rust.

The result was satisfactory until "Race 15B" rust appeared. The new wheat, "CT 186" is "RL 2255" crossed again with McMurchy and three times with Redman, an excellent milling and baking grade.

While new grains are being produced, others are in the breeding process. Researchers hope these will prove more rust resistant and look to the time when the blight will be eliminated.

Rust, even in a good year, costs the Canadian farmer millions. It was negligible last season but in 1951 cost an estimated 8,000,000 to 10,000,000 bushels of wheat alone.

THE COUSIN'S STORY

A History Of The Crows Nest Pass Area

Finally in Feb. 1896 it was announced that the Alberta Railway and Coal Company, which had held the charter for the Crows Nest Railway for the previous four years now had the money to proceed and agreed to lease the line to the Canadian Pacific when completed. The route was to be via the Crows Nest River and Michel Creek to the Elk River and across the plateau to the Kootenay River, passing Cranbrook but missing Fort Steele. A proposal to grant a loan of $20,000 per mile to help the construction was defeated by what the Macleod Gazette called "an obstructionist opposition" at Ottawa. A charter was granted by the Dominion government and subsidies and land grants arranged. Although it was called the British Columbia Southern Railway Company, it seems to have been but a subsidiary of the Canadian Pacific, for the former name was used only on maps.

Early in 1897 a Mr. McCreedy from Golden, arranged with Peter MacLaren to supply ties while the Winnipeg Free Press published the first map of the proposed line. Mr. P. Burns, a west Kootenay butcher was prepared to buy all the cattle in the country. The price was $40 a head for three or four year-old steers. By July Macleod was made construction centre under M. J. Haney and Mr. Lumsden. By the end of 1897 two news items appeared which set the pattern for many later press releases from the Crows Nest Pass. The first stated that Mr. C. E. D. Wood, who was magistrate, had left for Crows Nest Lake, a new town along the line, to prosecute before Inspector Saunders and Cuthbert, a man named Luce for selling liquor without a licence. The other item told of a rumor of labor troubles in the Pass which were said to have led to the resignation of Mr. Haney.

The N.W.M.P. were in charge of policing the line during construction and were sworn in as special B.C. police officers to give them full authority in that province. They reported 3,500 men employed in construction. There was not much lawlessness considering that $10,000 worth of liquor was imported each month, which was sold at twice that much to workers. However, one or two murders were committed during the 2 years construction, for many people like Luce followed the men with illicit liquor. Old construction workers stated that the old hotel at Crows Nest Lake had a barrel of whiskey on the counter at all times for self-service at 75 per glass.

PROCLAMATION TO ALL CITIZENS

The need for assistance to those that have suffered from the recent terrible floods in the United Kingdom and in Northern Europe is great.

The Canadian National European Flood Relief Committee, representative of all Provinces, is launching an unlimited appeal for funds, and you are invited to contribute.

Contributions may be made through branches of all Chartered Banks or directly by the purchase of Postal Money Orders at the Post Office, made payable to Canadian National European Flood Relief Committee. Receipts will be issued to those making donations, which will be valid for income tax purposes.

I am sure that it is not necessary for me to emphasize the need for assistance in this disaster, and I feel that all citizens will co-operate to the fullest extent.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

Alberta's Gas Export Policy

In 1938, the Alberta Government set up the Conservation Board to stop the waste of gas in the Turner Valley field. In 1947, the Gas Preservation Act was passed to control gas export and to protect the requirements of Albertans taking into consideration the future population, growth and industrial development.

Present proven reserves are easily sufficient to meet the needs of Alberta for 30 years. As each year goes by the 30-year period moves ahead, and no export permit will be granted unless there always remains a minimum 30-year supply. Only then will surplus gas be exported.

Gas in the form it is taken from the ground however, is not the gas that is exported. Before gas goes into a pipeline, any substances economically recoverable, such as sulphur, ethane, propane, butanes and natural gasoline are extracted. These rich raw materials are more valuable than the residue gas, and provide the materials for petro-chemical expansion and can be used for products such as acetylene, alcohol, glycols, glycerine, rubber, carbon disulphide, benzene, detergents, insecticides, explosives, fertilizers and polythene.

Propane, extracted from gas, is a fuel equal in convenience to natural gas, and can be stored in pressure tanks for home use or to supply communities. Consumption of propane in Alberta has increased tremendously in the last few years, to a point where it had to be imported from the United States in 1951. Development of a petro-chemical industry and assuring adequate supplies of propane for thousands of Alberta farm and rural homes which cannot be economically supplied with gas because of transportation and distribution costs, depends upon an export market for residue gas.

For gas to benefit Albertans and others, the resource must be developed to the fullest extent. Your government has adopted a conservative export policy to protect your interests indefinitely.

"Thank God for the Red Cross" said Foss Boulton, Prisoner During War

To most of us the Red Cross is a common thing, something that is reported to have and will help those in need. We know it come war or flood, or the annual campaign for funds.

Most of us know Foss Boulton. We know Foss as the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Boulton and one of Coleman's war heroes. We may remember him as a youngster or as the man that shot down enemy aircraft, but we know him.

We may remember that Foss was a prisoner of war and we may have heard the recording that he made when he returned home. Do we remember the part of that recording when he said "Thank God For The Red Cross"? If we do, can we remember that the Red Cross work is not something in the distance, that it is something that can touch people we know or ourselves when the need arises.

The Red Cross possibly doesn't even know that Foss attained the rank of Squadron Leader or that he destroyed six enemy planes, 4 probably destroyed and three damaged. They did know that he was a prisoner and needed a few comforts.

The Manitoba floods, the B.C. floods or the Netherlands and English floods saw the Red Cross in action... these were disaster areas. Who knows when we may be a disaster area. Who knows when fire, flood or explosion may bring suffering to us who sit snugly here. Who among us can honestly say that should this happen we would not look for and receive the help of the Red Cross.

When the canvassers call at your house remember that your dollar will permit the continuation of blood clinics, aid to disaster areas, maintaining out post hospitals and other vital Red Cross services. Your contribution to the Red Cross is merely a payment on insurance... insurance that there is a strong and equipped organization that is ready to help you or your friends when the need is greatest.

Elks Will Conduct Local Red Cross Drive

Coleman Elks Lodge have agreed to handle the Red Cross Campaign for funds again this year, and urge that everyone in the Coleman area be prepared for the canvassers. These men are donating their services as canvassers and are deserving of courteous reception.

The combined efforts of the Coleman Elks and the generosity of the Coleman people last year drew the praise of Provincial Red Cross headquarters. Let us maintain this splendid record and see that Coleman once again over subscribes its quota.

Fortunate Having Blood Clinic Here

Mrs. F. Graham attended the two day convention of the Red Cross on Feb. 19 and 20 as the official delegate from Coleman. Impressed with the work being done by the Red Cross in this province, Mrs. Graham brought back the following report.

Instructed to obtain all the information possible, the Coleman delegate sat in on all reports and states that personnel under whom the various branches function proved to be very co-operative.

Mrs. Graham was among those taken through the Women's Branch Work Rooms, a section of interest to the Coleman branch. Here she saw all the clothing and various other articles being made ready for shipment. With another group, she toured the new Children's Hospital and claims it to be a most remarkable building in all aspects. The matron Miss Reid was most hospitable in showing the group every angle of the hospital, laundry, store rooms, class rooms, orthopedic works, the large tanks and various other apparatus for use in therapy work. One of the most revealing was the section devoted to the construction of braces and orthopedic equipment for hospital use.

Thursday morning, Mrs. Graham sat in on the Blood Donor Clinic report and learned it to be the big financial burden of the Red Cross. From this she learned how fortunate the Crows Nest Pass area is in having the clinic appear here yearly and wished that this fact be known by each and every resident. The great cost of operating a blood donor clinic demands that enough donors respond to make the value of donations at least break even with the money spent in transporting the unit to the locality and the collecting of the blood. For this reason, there are many areas not served by the clinic that wish it. Donors within the area do not make a trip financially possible. "We are very fortunate in having the clinic come to this area" emphasized Mrs. Graham.

On Thursday afternoon the local delegate was taken through Calgary Red Cross House and the Blood Donor Clinic and shown all the technical process of the clinic.

Mrs. Graham summed up her remarks by stating that she found her visit to the convention most instructive and inspiring. The highlight being the visit to the new Junior Red Cross hospital.

Red Cross Found Wherever People Need Assistance

The Red Cross is bearing a tremendous load in the fight for life in the Netherlands and England. Hundreds of volunteer workers are at the dike of this emergency giving aid. Red Cross funds are being quickly depleted and also Red Cross Blood Banks.

The annual Red Cross Campaign for funds will be held Mar. 1 to 31 and a large share of this will be needed to help rehabilitate the unfortunate victims of the floods. We are asked to keep this in mind when we make our donations.

The annual Red Cross Campaign for blood donors will be held in September and it is hoped that at least one person from every home will give one pint of blood. If they do we will triple last year's donations from Coleman.

No matter how much we can do it will be small in comparison with the great heartache and the mental and physical suffering being endured by those personally affected.

Joan Dunford.

They reach many individuals not touched by other churches or organizations.

Last week's editorial has prompted me to tell what I know of overseas Relief at this time. In the first week of emergency in the Netherlands $10,000 was sent by the United Church of Canada. Envelopes for Overseas Relief have been distributed to the members of every United church across Canada and the response has been very gratifying. In the next week this money will be forwarded to help provide food, clothing and shelter. I feel confident that every church in our town can tell a similar story.

Yours truly,
Joan Dunford.

Editor's Note — The editorial stated "perhaps other organizations are doing the same but are apparently hiding their light under a bushel". It was the fact that the Army publicized their efforts that the editorial was written. Those not affiliated with a church knew by this means were to give a donation should they desire. The editorial was not meant to criticize other churches, merely thank the Army for the campaign and bringing it before the people.

Letter to The Editor

Dear Editor:

I think the Salvation Army makes a wonderful contribution in the cause of Christianity in the world, and their work is revealed in many practical ways.

WOULD YOU REFUSE TO SAVE A CHILD'S LIFE?

More likely, you'd plunge clothes-on into deep water, unhesitatingly dash into a burning building, or take all manner of risks in an emergency to save someone's life.

This may not be as spectacularly heroic, but once a year you do have the privilege of sharing in the humanitarian work of the Red Cross. And just as surely as you support this work financially, you are helping save lives and alleviate suffering, through:

- Free Blood Transfusions
- Disaster Services
- War Veterans Service
- Outpost Hospitals
- Water Safety Work
- Junior Red Cross
- First Aid Stations

and the many other mercy services the Red Cross provides throughout Canada.

Of course you'll help... We'll all help... We'll...

GIVE TO THE RED CROSS

Girl Of 20 Is
Mother Of 11
Children

GIRL OF 20 IS MOTHER OF 11 CHILDREN—When 20-year-old Agnes Pinder of Arthur, Ont., accepted the marriage proposal of twice-married 40-year-old George Picken, she automatically became the mother of 10 children, four by her husband's first marriage and one by his second. Five stepchildren of the second marriage, orphaned at the death of their mother, also became her charges. And now there is an 11th child, Kenneth, three months, child of the third marriage. The new mother came to the already established family without fanfare or fuss, gathering the children around her as her own and showering on them the motherly care as their father's. Mother, father and own mother would do, although she is only slightly older than some of the children herself. Mother, father and 11 children, seen above, make one big happy family in the warm home three miles south of Durham, Ont., which boasts six bedrooms to take care of the family. "They all get the same consideration and care, lots to eat," said their father. "One is the same as another and all are made to feel part of the same group."

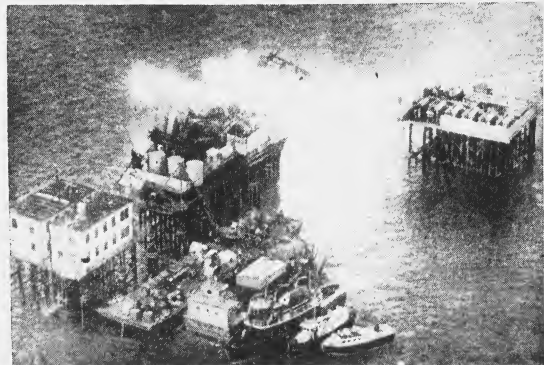

A FIRE CAN BE A COLD BUSINESS IN 10 BELOW WEATHER—While hot drinks provided by workers of Salvation Army warm the "inner man," water remains frozen on clothes of these two firemen who helped fight fire estimated at between $500,000 and $1,000,000 at Collingwood, Ont. One fireman is in hospital, four people are homeless and the northwest section of the town's main street lies in ice-coated ruins, the aftermath of heaviest fire loss in Collingwood's history. Fanned by a blizzard in 10-below zero temperature, the all-day fire started in a furniture store and swept in two directions through the three-storey brick block to destroy a furniture, appliances and department store. Flames were licking close to the post-office and mail had to be removed before the fire was stopped. Believed to have started from an oil space-heater in furniture store, the fire had gained good headway before residents of second-floor apartments directly over it smelled smoke.

EGYPT'S STRONG MAN "SOFTENS UP"—General Mohammed Naguib, premier and "strong man" of Egypt, is seen "softening up" as he is kissed on hand and cheek by villagers of Sahrag El Soghra during his visit to the community after a disastrous fire killed ten persons, destroyed 195 houses and left 208 families homeless. Sparks blown from burning wood which was being carried by an old woman from one house to another started the conflagration. Central Press Canadian.

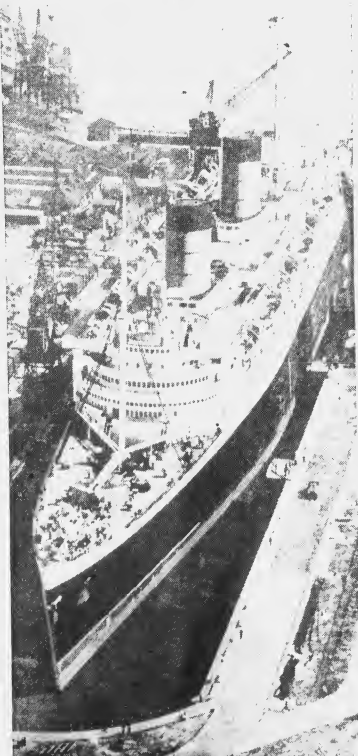

YOU CAN'T PLEASE EVERY-ONE, MILORD—Lord Salisbury, in charge of seating arrangements for peers at the coronation, found himself with too many noble lords and too few seats in Westminster Abbey. So he drew names out of a hat and the losers were consigned to a pavilion outside. When the losers protested, Lord Salisbury, in the House of Lords, assured the peers that there was nothing "underhanded" about the selection and that his ruling would stand.

FIREMEN BATTLE STUBBORN GAS WELL BLAZE—Wind-whipped flames, visible for 50 miles engulfed five gas wells at an offshore oil drilling platform at Morgan City, La. Situated in the Gulf of Mexico the blaze was under fire from a team of anti-tank experts from nearby Camp Polk who were down to the scene with a 75 millimeter rifle in an attempt to puncture the superstructure of the wells so the flames, shooting horizontally to the water in this aerial photograph, would turn skyward, relieve the danger to other wells, and enable standard fire-fighting efforts to be brought into play.

OCCUPANTS RECEIVED ONLY MINOR INJURIES—Despite the impact of the crash, only five persons received minor injuries when this double-decker bus, going about its business in Madrid, Spain, was cut off by a truck and forced against a passing cab. The cab, smashed "flatter than a pancake," contained three occupants, who were treated for minor hurts. Central Press Canadian.

TWO MINOR FIRES were reported recently aboard the mighty British liner Queen Elizabeth during a 24 hour period. She is at present in dry-dock at Southampton, England, where this aerial photograph was taken during a recent overhaul. Although, very little damage resulted from the blazes, the ship was gone over from bow to stern in an effort to detect foul play.

WOMAN SAILS ATLANTIC ALONE—Mrs. Ann Davison, 38, is shown in her 23-foot yacht, Felicity Ann, in which she sailed the Atlantic alone, thus becoming the first woman in history to do so. She set sail from Plymouth, England, last May 18 and has reached the West Indies. Her first attempt to cross the Atlantic with her husband ended in disaster. Their 70-foot ketch sank in a storm and he was drowned. She vowed she would make the crossing alone. Central Press Canadian.

SCOTTISH HEADSCARF—A model wears one of the Elizabeth the First headscarves which have been manufactured under the sponsorship of the Scottish Covenant Association. The scarf is adorned with the Lion of Scotland and the Cross of St. Andrew, and bears the inscription "Elizabeth I, Queen of Scots". Contention of the Association is that Queen Elizabeth I (1533-1603) was not the Queen of Scotland, therefore the title Queen Elizabeth II for the present Queen would not be justified.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

A Matter of Art

By William J. Murdock

"I WON'T join the Bi-Weekly Culture Club," said Emmet Crane. "Why should I?"

"Because you'll make contacts," Mrs. Crane said triumphantly. "You know how important contacts are to an insurance man."

He scowled at his nails while his wife waited hopefully. She considered Mrs. Livingston the town's leading intellectual, and to be associated with her club-wise would be a feather in her cap. Dora Crane couldn't tell her husband that Mrs. Livingston insisted on both husband and wife showing a genuine interest in art and culture before either could be admitted to club membership. Emmet just didn't understand such things.

"What would I have to do to join?"

"Well, the rules say you have to give an original talk on some cultural topic," Mrs. Crane explained. "Now, don't blow up!"

"An original—"

"But you can't—cheat a little, Emmet. All's fair in business. At the last meeting Mrs. Livingston said she would lead a discussion on Italian Renaissance Art next week. All you have to do is go to the library, take a few notes from the encyclopedia, and give a little speech after Mrs. Livingston finishes. She'll be so impressed, Emmet—please!"

Emmet sulked, and Mrs. Crane knew he saw clear through her sham.

But she knew he also saw some fat premiums.

"All right," he growled. "What a way to make a living! What a way to make a living!"

Emmet copied his speech word for word from an encyclopedia and spent three evenings memorizing the stilted prose.

"Are you sure you'll be able to say it convincingly?" Mrs. Crane asked the night before the meeting. "I wouldn't want Mrs. Livingston to suspect that it wasn't entirely original. She's so strict—"

Emmet knit his eyebrows menacingly. "If you're afraid I'll embarrass you, Dora—"

She protested quickly, "I'm sure you'll do just fine!"

She certainly hoped as she and Emmet sat in the last row and heard Mrs. Livingston rap for order.

"Tonight," said the intellectual chief, "I will contribute a few remarks from my own personal journal concerning Italian Renaissance Art. The large chairman launched heretofore on a ponderous discussion."

Mrs. Crane kept a close watch on Emmet. His face was a mask, but she detected a measure of contempt in his eyes. She was uneasy. If he did anything to spoil her chances of having her name linked officially with Mrs. Livingston and the Bi-Weekly Culture Club—well!

"Well!" said Mrs. Livingston brightly, "has anyone anything to add?"

Mrs. Crane jabbed Emmet. "Go on."

Emmet remained seated, his arms folded.

"Emmet!" Mrs. Crane whispered fiercely. "Please!"

Emmet shook his head.

Dora Crane felt like crying. She suffered through to adjournment, then fairly snatched her recalcitrant husband by the elbow and tugged him towards the exit.

Emmet must have been disturbed by the fury in her white face, for suddenly he jerked her to a stop.

"Wait a minute," he scowled. "Do you really want to join this outfit?"

"It's too late now. Why didn't you stand up and—"

"Wait right here," Emmet said. He strode away, and Mrs. Crane saw him stop at the presiding table. She watched him introduce himself to Mrs. Livingston, saw the chairman's face reddened, saw them retire to a corner where they conversed earnestly. Mrs. Crane felt faint. Surely, Emmet wouldn't make a fool of himself before her and spoil their chances for good!

A moment later Mrs. Livingston came over to Dora, seized her hands and shook them warmly. "I'm delighted to extend membership in our little club to you and Mr. Crane," the rangy chairman said through a flushed smile. "No, not a word, my dear." She turned to Mr. Crane.

"And I'll expect a call from you very soon on that other matter, Mr. Crane," she said. She moved majestically away.

"You heard her," Emmet grinned. "Not a word. That little talk I had with her convinced me I knew something about Italian Renaissance Art, even if I didn't have the nerve to stand up in meeting and say so."

"And she wants you to call her next week!"

"Not a word, my dear," he mimicked.

It was a $25,000 call—the fattest insurance policy Emmet had written in a long time. He never told Dora about it, nor did he divulge that his earnest talk with Mrs. Livingston at the meeting was the result of his disclosure that they had both copied the same speech on Italian Renaissance Art word for word from the same encyclopedia. Dora might have called the whole thing bribery, but the way Emmet handled it certainly was an art.

Immigrant Laborer Becomes Businessman In Few Months

BRANDON, Man.—John Kreuter, German immigrant who came to Canada as a farm laborer and ended up as a business man, says the country has abundant opportunities for the man willing to work. Just last spring he had only 50 cents. His family of three had barely enough clothing.

Now he is established in a landscaping business. In the busy seasons of spring and summer he estimates he will need 15 helpers to keep pace with orders.

"We wouldn't go back for all the money in the world," he said in an interview.

Last spring he came to Brandon from a district farm. He had worked there a year, one of the conditions of entry.

Besides his 50 cents, he had a thorough knowledge of landscape gardening gained in a German school and a tremendous urge to get ahead.

He realized there was a future for a landscape gardener here and he found a place to get plenty of soil, the basic need for the job.

But he had no money to buy a truck. A bank, without asking security or references, granted him a loan to make the down payment.

For the next six weeks, John, his wife, Ann, and their two small children headed for the nearby Carberry hills to haul and for the Camp Shilo army base. They worked from 3 a.m. until dusk.

By the end of six weeks, he was far enough ahead to buy a sod cutter and began taking orders in Brandon. From sodding he went to grass seeding and tree planting. As the season shortened he began top-dressing lawns.

John's greatest worry was the winter season when there would be no landscaping. The sale of Christmas trees provided a partial answer. Now he keeps busy cutting and pruning trees.

Mrs. Kreuter for more than six months has been able to devote her fulltime to her home and children, Manfred, four, and Norma, three.

The Kreuters still have language problems to overcome but they are making headway. John's greatest desire is to receive his Canadian citizenship papers.
